The Center for Medicare and Medicaid Innovation (CMMI) is a federal program established in 2010 under President Obama’s Affordable Care Act (ACA). Below is a description of the program.

With a $10 billion per decade budget, CMMI was intended to test new demonstration models in Medicare and Medicaid to lower healthcare costs, improve care and deliver billions of dollars in savings for American families. However, according to a September 2023 Congressional Budget Office study, CMMI generated a net loss of more than $5 billion through 2020 and is projected to lose another $1 billion through 2030.

The CBO report also found that CMMI’s demonstration models provided little if any improvements to health care costs or patient outcomes as promised, and even adversely disrupted some patient care plans when their models were implemented. The agency has come under criticism for failing to deliver promised savings and pursuing nationwide, mandatory tests that forced doctors and patients into new care models.

Members of Congress agree that CMMI has not had adequate oversight and transparency and failed to improve care for Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries.

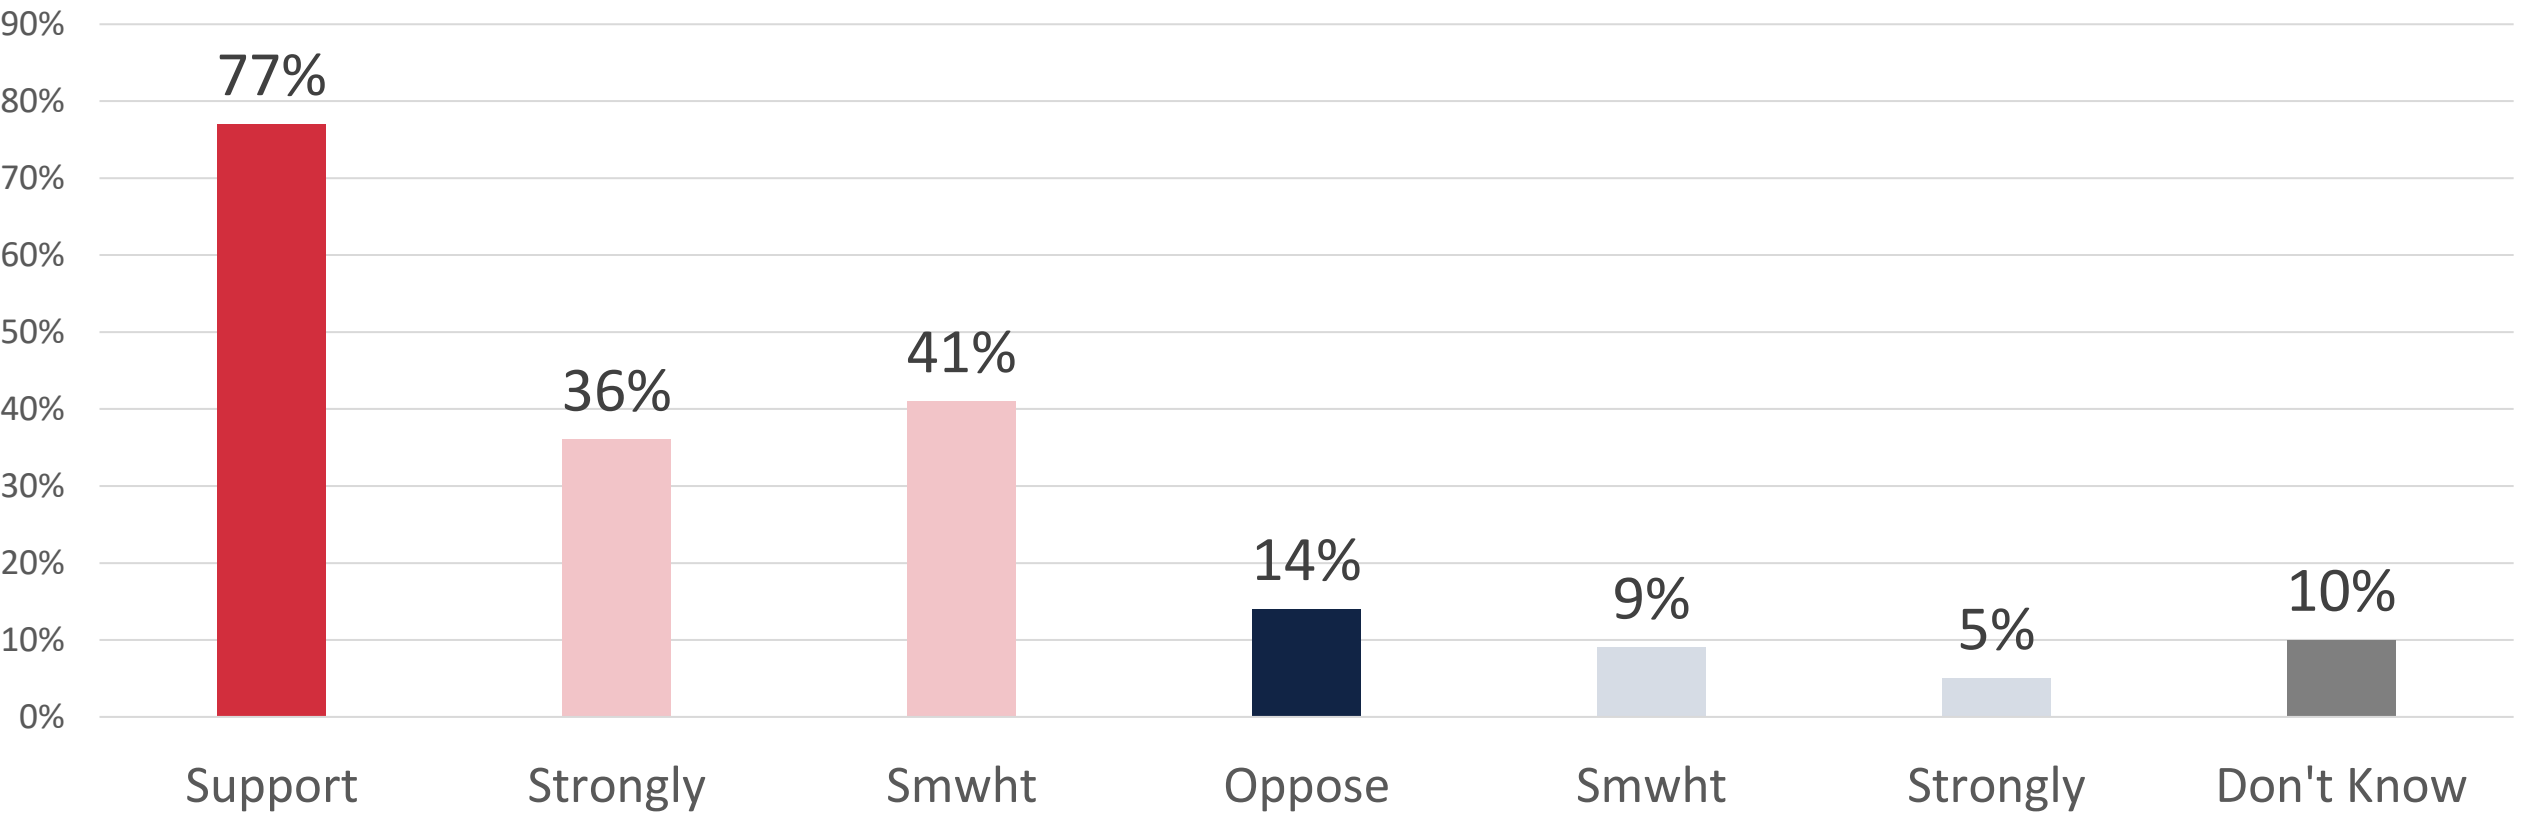

Based on what you have learned about the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Innovation (CMMI) federal program, please answer the following questions.

Do you approve or disapprove of the job the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Innovation (CMMI) is doing to lower healthcare costs and improve care?

For each of their Medicare and Medicaid models, the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Innovation (CMMI) creates a one-size-fits-all approach to deliver healthcare to diverse patient populations across the country. The one-size-fits-all approaches often limit flexibility, innovation, and patient-doctor decision-making.

Which approach do you think is better for patients?
